MIRIAM DANCE is the gifted lyricist. Born in Seattle Washington into a very musical family, Miriam sang gospel music with her older siblings and began writing songs at the age of six. In her teenage years, she began writing her own musicals and plays. In 1998 she formed a gospel group called Imani, wrote most of their songs and performed at the 2003 Super Bowl Gospel Fest held in San Diego. Miriam has also recently written material for popular gospel choirs including Voices of Fulfillment and Undefeated, which will feature four of her songs on their soon-to-be released debut album. She has also performed in numerous musicals, and through the years has branched out from primarily writing gospel to writing in other genres including alternative rock, Pop and R&B, and even musical theatre. Miriam currently attends UC Santa Barbara, pursuing a degree in Theatre Directing.
